THE general lugubriousness over the state of college athletics belongs mostly to the elder generation. For a considerable period in the more or less checkered career of the human race the elder generation has been given to worrying over the state of mind and soul of the

It is my contention that most of the evils suspected in college athletics might be traced to the influence of the alumni. The faculty and the undergraduate body of a university have little to do with the selection of a football coach and the development of a "football policy." These Rally Comes on Inward Holes, matters usually are directed by influential alumni who are determined to see to it that dear old Siwash or dear old U. of Whatsis have winning football teams and the dear old traditions of the early '90s.

If a little influence is used to make a blacksmith or a boilermaker see the advantages of the higher education and the Minnesota shift this influence is brought to bear by alumni who have the time, the money PINEHURST, N. If college athletics are sick I would suggest that the undergraduates are the best physicians. But they are not as sick, generally speaking, as the few sporadic cases of professionalism would indicate.

The Magnates and the Judge.

Mutterings of magnates in the baseball world, which make the long hard winters longer and harder, indicate that the enthusiasm for Judge K. M. Landis, the supreme court of baseball, is slightly tempered. The Judge, it seems, has been taking his work with more seriousness than some of the magnates care to see.

It was perfectly al! right for the supreme court of baseball to act with much severity and sternness when baseball was under the cloud of the "Black Sox" exposures. When the baseball devil was sick he turned monk, but now he seems to be almost entirely well-witness the fact that the Cincinnati Reds have just paid a sweet dividend of 20 per cent. Therefore some of the magnates are chafing a bit under the sternness of Any resentment against the Judge is not shared by the owners of the Yankees, who are hardest hit by a Landis ruling in the case of Babe Mrs. Shaw Ties With Ruth. Ruppert and Huston proposed the Judge and they stick to their choice, even though the ruling will cause a great deal of sluggishness in

From one point of view the insistence of the Judge in punishing

From one point of view the insistence of the Judge in punishing Ruth for insubordination because of his flagrant violation of a baseball rule, even though the rule was somewhat foolish, will make for baseball discipline. In the good old pre-Landis days the magnates would act with becoming severity in the case of a mediocre player, while they would rule in the case of a star "Not guilty, but please do not do it again."

Let us remember that if Hal Chase had been hurled out of baseball at the time Mathewson stood ready to prove charges against him there would have been no "Black Sox" scandal. But it was the whitewashing of Chase that got those Chicago players to muttering, "Well, Chase gets away with it. What is the use of being on the level?"

It looks as though the penalty for Ruth would have to stand. Yet when the season opens and the Babe is not busting the pill against the welkin a majority of the fans will be complaining of the harshness of bird" event. On the shootoff this cup was taken by H. Some time during the current year Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight champion, and Harry Wills, the negro heavyweight, will fight if a place can be found where a permit for the bout can be procured. They will not fight for Mr. William Brady's modest guarantee of $200,000. Jack Kearns, manager for Dempsey, who has some experience with pugilistic high finance, believes that the bout will pay a million. It might,

Just now it would appear that Wills might have a slightly better chance with Dempsey than did Carpentier, who had no chance at all. Johnson did nothing to uplift the manly art of mauling. There is no brief and no defense for Johnson, and yet I hold that what was worst in the negro ex-champion was due to the influence of ring parasites of the white race. Their influence made of the simple minded Galveston roustabout a black Frankenstein that almost kicked the silly old prize fight game to pieces. Johnson was of the type of the Emperor Jones.

What Fulton Lacked.

As a heavyweight contender Fred Fulton, the plastered plasterer of Rochester, Minn., has finally been consigned to the junk heap. The inquest over the pugilistic remains of Frederic brought out some conflicting verdicts.

Some said that he lacked the heart for a gruelling fight. Some said that he lacked the ability to assimilate punishment. He had bulk, reach and, best of all, one of the most dangerous lefts in the game. I think that Fulton revealed plainly what was lacking to make him a champion in the bout with Bartley Madden, the bout that consigned him to Jolivion. Once in this bout he had Madden helpless and defenseless against the ropes, wide open, as they say. Fulton drew back to land the finishing punch and then instinctively refrained from letting go. This certainly is not to Fulton's discredit as a man. On the contrary, morally it placed him higher than any successful prize fighter. But he lineup:

Wins Two Games in 40 and Holds World's Checker Title

Robert Stewart of Scotland Defeats N. W. Banks of N. Y.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Feb. 11 (Associated Press) .- Robert Stewart, Scotch checkers champion, to-day won the inciated Press).—Robert Stewart. Scotch checkers champion, to-day won the international championship by defeating the American champion. Newell W. Banks of Detroit, Mich. Over a series of forty games Stewart won two and Banks one, with thirty-seven games played to a draw.

Two games of the series were played to-day. The opening plays were from position 9 to 14 and from position 24 to 19. Both games were drawn after long, hard playing.

Stewart and Banks began their series of forty games on January 23. Their match had been hanging fire for five years, ever since Banks defeated Alfred Jordan, the English champion. At that time Stewart contested Banks's title as international champion but refused to leave Scotland to defend his claim.

Stewart series on the second day of the match, and won his second game four days later. Banks won his only game on Tuesday of this week. His only victory was won through what is known in checkers parlance as a "denny" opening the later he had lost it to Billy Papke by a knockout—regain it by articles on sport champions of the past, men who made their narks in baseball, in the ring, in athletics, tennis and other branches of professional and amateur endeavor.

The heart of a lion, the physique of a bull, the indomitable spirit of a true Titan—these made Stanley Ketchel champion of the middleweight division and one of the most picturesque and colorful luminaries in the history of American boxing.

Ketchel was a boxer of no mean ability, but it was his rushing tactics and his fighting fury which made him stand out so brilliantly. There are two striking indices to his qualities, first, his ability to come back and regain the title after he had lost it to Billy Papke by a knockout—regain it by

Ketchel's Homeric battle with Johnson was fought on October 16, 1999, at Colma, and what a scrap the smaller man put up! Johnson bigger, more clever and quite a hitter, had the fight well in hand most of the way, but he knew he was in a terrific tussle. Ketchel kept coming in for more all the time

Ketchel scored forty-four knockouts.

Twenty-one of these came in succession.

His string of knockout triumphs was His string of knocked the same and soon ran up a snapped when he ran into Joe Thomas and a draw in a twenty round battle at Marysville, Cal., on July 4, 1907. In September he knocked out Thomas at San Francisco in thirty-two rounds—and they still are talking about that bruising, punishing mill out there.

LEONARD NO GANS, BEST UP TO DATE

Imbued With Business as Well as Fighting Spirit of the Age.

Old timers who bitterly resent the late Joe Gans are mumbling over the failure of Leonard to finish Rocky Kansas in the eleventh round Friday night. They point out that when they got up-if they got up-after Gans hit them they went down again and Perhaps this is one of the points of difference between Gans and Leonard. Gans was an artist. Benny is a busi-

In the days when Gans was shulfling flatfooted through the various rings there were plenty of good lightweights. When Joseph pensively tapped one on the chin there always would be another hanging around somewhere.

But consider the case of Benny Leonard. Lightweights even zuch as they are cannot be picked up everywhere. How many times has Leonard boxed with Johnny Dundee? Quite a few, and no doubt will box him again in the near future. Supposing that Leonard had been shortsighted enough to have spilled Dundee in one of the early bouts. He would have been weeping harder than Alexander when he found that there were no more worlds to K. O.

more worlds to K. O.

Perhaps the big difference between Leonard and Gans is the difference in the times. Benny is a product of a highly commercial age and a farsighted young gentleman. Gans belonged to the days when purses were small and oppo days when purses were small and opponents plentiful.

Of course, Leonard is not the absolutely sordid business man that Abe Attell was. Abie used to wait in the ring stalling and blocking until one of his brothers counted the house and gave him something near the smount taken in before the would really start the evening's work. The amount decided whether or not there would be a knockout. Able certainly knew how to cowhether or not there would be a court able certainly knew how to coordinate the box office and art. Something of the possibilities of boxing as a business rather than an art was shown to Leonard by his immediate predecessor, Freddie Welsh. But Weish. Moreover, it cannot be said of Leonard that he is overcareful in the making of matches. Leonard takes thom-as they come provided the guarantees are satisfactory. Also Leonard gives them a good show. When Leonard was being roughed by Rocky Kansas a part of the customers at Madison Square Garden got quite a few thrills. They began to imagine that looked like a slipping hero he gave then the melodramatic touch with a knock Consequently it will have to be ad-mitted that while Benjamin is no Joe Gans he is a champion imbued with the spirit of the age of cash registers and adding machines, and no mean battler down. He gave them a show.
